PLEAD FOR WORK

"Get Every Man to Washington," is Slogan.

By The Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 5.—"Cox's army" of jobless set off for Washington today to plead for work. More than 20 blocks were jammed with crowds as the Rev. Father James R. Cox, a Roman Catholic priest, marshaled his followers for the trek to the capital. A last minute change of plans forced hundreds of men to start the march afoot. Approximately 600 automobiles and trucks, some of them dilapidated, were filled to capacity. "It's a glorious success," said the priest. "We'll get every man to Washington."

Mayor Coxe Puts His O. K. On March

By The Associated Press.
MASSILLON, O., Jan. 5.—Mayor Jacob S. Coxe, who led a march of his own 38 years ago, approves another trek of unemployed to Washington. Encouragement was asked of "General" Coxe yesterday by Rev. Father James R. Cox, Pittsburgh Catholic priest who proposes to have 5,000 men march to the capital. Coxe not only urged that idle workers join the march, but also that they petition congress to adopt his non-interest bearing small bond plan. Becoming mayor has given Coxe a job answering "fan mail" by those approving or anxious to learn more about his "money at cost" plan to help the unemployed. Letters have been received from all parts of the country and from Soviet Russia commenting on his proposal to issue $200,000 in low interest bearing bonds to be used as a medium of exchange.

ington, some way or other. They'll all get there."

Priest Leads March.
The marchers began gathering last night in 16th and 17th streets near the Allegheny river. There was no disorder.

Father Cox agreed to lead the march, he said, because he feels it is someone's duty to impress upon governmental leaders in a sane way the dire straits in which these people and others find themselves. In the caravan are mill hands, coal miners, railroad workers, and

UPHOLDS SCALE

Borah Urges Lower
Pay for Cabinet
Members.

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—President Hoover today prepared to take a definite stand against any general federal wage cut—should proposals for such a move reach the stage of congressional action. This was assured in authoritative quarters.

The President has made no public statement as to various proposals to slash federal salaries from 10 to 20 per cent, but the word was passed among administration leaders that he is ready to take an adamant stand.

Should proposals to cut wages receive widespread support, it was said definitely he will declare for maintenance of government wages. He feels definitely not only that the government must maintain its wage scale to retain capable officials but must not set the country a bad example by any general wage reduction.

Senator Borah Republican, Idaho, yesterday introduced several measures to lower the salaries of the vice president, the speaker, and all cabinet members from $15,000 to $12,000, and slash congressional wages from $8,000.

Simultaneously Representative McGuinn, Republican, Kansas, suggested an emergency reduction ranging from ten per cent on incomes in the lower brackets to 20 per cent on salaries over $5,000.

Mayor Cuts Payroll, Fights For Job

By The Associated Press.
CONNEAUT, O., Jan. 5.—Mayor L. R. Naylor, who reduced the safety department to four men in his first five days in office, was confronted today with a fight to keep his job.

Petitions charging Naylor with flagrantly exceeding his authority, were being circulated. If they are filed in court, a trial within 30 days will be mandatory.

Naylor announced the city was "broke" and cut the police and fire departments to two paid men each. The other police and firemen, however, stayed on duty in hopes the city council would find sufficient funds for them.

ROTARY HEARS A. P. EXECUTIVE

W. F. Brooks Speaks
At Club's Noon
Luncheon.

A picture of the activities of The Associated Press, world-wide news gathering organization, was given at the Rotary club luncheon today in the Travelers' hotel by W. F. Brooks, New York, executive assistant to the general manager. He was introduced by C. V. Hughes, business manager of The Review.

Brooks pointed out that more than 225,000 miles of leased wire is maintained daily to The Review and other member newspapers. An army of more than 80,000 news gatherers searches the principal towns and cities of the world for news of general interest, the speaker said.

The Associated Press, Brooks declared, spends more than $10,000,000 annually to disseminate the news which is made available to its member newspapers each year. It is a cooperative organization, each of which pays its pro rata share of the expense. It is not operated for profit and its news reports are necessarily truthful, unbiased, and non-partisan.

"With editors of every religious faith, every political creed, and every race and condition of service, scanning the report daily," Brooks said, "it would be virtually impossible for any news not adhering strictly to truth to be disseminated."

"If then," Brooks concluded, "you do not remember anything else I have said, this I beg you to keep in mind: whenever you see the line 'By The Associated Press' or the letters (AP), whether at the head of news stories or identifying photographs, you may rest assured that the writer or the photographer therein recorded to the best of his expert knowledge and judgment, the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth. Further, editors of every shade of opinion and belief had not accepted it as fact that material would never have appeared in print."

RUSH WORK ON TARIFF CHANGES

Administration Frowns Upon Measure
Destroying Flexible Provisions in Hawley-Smoot Bill.

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 5.—The administration frowned today on the new Democratic tariff bill, but the house continued pushing it to quick passage, nevertheless.

A veto was forecast if the Republican senate fails to block the bill. Administration leaders asserted that President Hoover felt the tariff issue should not be brought up now at all.

The measure came before the house ways and means committee for hearings today. Its approval by that group, consisting of 15 Democrats and ten Republicans, is certain, and Democratic leader Rainey said its passage was "certain by not later than Thursday."

Representative Snell said, the bill destroyed the flexible provisions of the present tariff act and provided for continual discussion of the tariff in congress.

WARREN, NILES COURT OUSTER MOVE IS FILED

Court is Asked to Remove Municipal Judges.

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5.—Ousting of the municipal judges of Warren and Niles was asked in the supreme court today by Prosecuting Attorney G. H. Berrell of Trumbull county.

In quo warranto proceedings, Berrell said he wished to clarify the acts of the legislature in establishing the new courts. He contended that the legislature failed to specify the term of office each judge should serve, merely stating that "he should serve until his successor is elected and qualified."

Berrell also contends the law creating the courts is unconstitutional in that it places an illegal assessment on the taxpayers of Howland, Niles, Warren, village of McDonald and Wetherfield township.

W. W. Jelen was elected judge of the Niles court and took office January 1. R. Speak has been presiding over the Warren court.

The two courts were established to supersede the trial of cases by mayors and justices of the peace in the Warren-Niles district.

get a new rider. But reckon you'll have to take it as a joke."

"Huh! I will—like the old lady who keeps tavern out West!" replied Rock with a short laugh.

"How's that, boss?" inquired Al, hugely delighted.

"Like h—," answered Rock. "Boys, I reckon I'm the maddest cowboy-nerd that ever was. I think I'll get a horse and saddle from you, and go after my own."

"If you take my advice you'll swallow it—leastways till Ash comes back. Chances are he won't do Egypt no harm. If you follow Ash now, mad as you are, there'll only be another fight."

"Take it as a joke. Or better be nice about it," added Harry. "That always stumps Ash. If he can't make you mad he let's up—for a while, anyway."

"Thanks, boys. I'll think it over," rejoined Rock, grateful for their solicitude. "But I reckon the good Lord himself couldn't keep my mouth shut—after that."

"Let's get to work," suggested Harry. "We're late. And Ash ain't the only one Pa can cuss."

While Rock and Al greased the wagon wheels, Harry hitched up, and by the time this task was done Tom rode in, leading a horse. It was a bay that instantly took Rock's eye, and which would have made up for the loss of most any horse, except one like Egypt.

"Where's Ash's saddle?" he asked.

"It's hangin' there," replied Al. "But, gee! you won't ride his, will you?"

"I'll be darned if I won't," returned Rock, with grim humor. "You boys rustle along. I'll catch up."

"Come down the road by the pasture, boss," said Al. "Then take the right-hand road. You can't miss the slaughter-house, for the stink will knock you down."

After the boys left, Rock proceeded to put Ash's saddle and bridle on the bay horse, but he was not in any hurry. This first trick of Ash Preston's rankled in Rock. "Wonder what Thiry will say," he soliloquized. "She must have seen Ash on my horse. That's what upset her. . . . Damn him!—He must be one of those people who make the angels weep. And here I am with my hands tied!"

When Rock rode around the barn he espied the wagon far ahead down the gentle slope. He came to the forks of the road, and taking the left one he entered the cedars, climbed the ridge, and descended to a grassy meadow, only to mount another cedared ridge. Rock rode up a sparsely cedared slope to a level bench, and soon came upon the site that had once been Slagle's ranch. The boys were halting before the several cabins. As Rock rode up, the stench unmistakably heralded a slaughter-house. Cabins, corral fences, barns and sheds, and even the trees bore ghastly evidence of the nature of what this old Slagle ranch had sunk to. Skins of cattle hung everywhere.

The horses were turned loose to graze, and Rock, with the three boys, set to work. It was no easy task for one man, or even two men, to fold a stiff hide and compress it into small space. But that was what they had to do. The Preston boys might have been skillful and diligent at other kinds of ranch work, but at this particular job they were lazy. They made no bones of saying they hated it and particularly the inescapable smell. Rock did not drive the boys, but he drove himself. He heard Al say to his brothers in an aside, "Sure he's a hawg for work."

Nevertheless, during this labor, and while joking with the brothers, without any ostensible interest in the place of the hides, Rock was bending all his keen faculties toward the end that he had determined upon. Nothing escaped his sharp eye, yet during the half day that it took to complete this job he did not observe anything that struck him significantly. Toward late afternoon, however, he happened to kick a piece of white substance, not stone, and of a color markedly contrasting with the red earth. When he picked it up he thought it was clay. He smelled it—tasted it. Quicklime! Rock put it in his pocket.

In due time Tom mounted the loaded wagon to drive home, while the other brothers rode off toward the woods, each now with a rifle over his shoulder.

"I'll poke along, Tom," said Rock. Presently Rock was left alone. The boys were so guileless that he knew he could pursue his suspicions almost before their backs were turned. They surely were as honest boys as any one could find.

He took out the piece of quicklime. It did not appear to be very old. He looked around where he had found it to see if there was more. After diligent search he found a smaller piece. Quicklime in any quantity there might be used to deaden the stench of decaying offal, blood, and bones. Rock searched all the cabins, sheds, bins, without finding any more. None had ever been used upon the horrible pile that had accumulated below the slaughter-house.

"Reckon no little piece of quicklime could get down here of its own accord," muttered Rock, deliberating. "It sure never flew. It must have been fetched here with more of the same. What for?"

He had no other answer than the first he had conjectured. Manifestly the Prestons left the entrails and skeletons of their cattle there on the ground to rot. No need to waste valuable time destroying what the elements, the dogs, coyotes, and hogs would soon do away with. But they might have left something here that they wanted to destroy quickly. Hides! Cow hides they could not sell because these did not bear their brands!

All of a sudden, into Rock's searching mind there flashed memory of a deep well he had once helped to dig on these premises. It had been a job, he rebelled, that

Chapter 21 QUICKLIME

"It was just daylight when I got down here," went on Harry.

"Range and Scoot were just riding off. Ash had your horse and saddle. Pa was cussin' Ash awful. Reckon they'd been arguin', 'cause Pa never cusses till he's wore out."

"Well, when he got done Ash says, 'Pa, how'd you like to go to forks your horse and rides after the boys. Pa 'peared to be chokin' mad. All of a sudden he busted out laughin'. He climbed up on the wagon with Boots, and they left.'"

Rock for the moment succumbed to a silent fury. But seeing the gray-eyed brothers watching him curiously, keen to catch how he would take this first move of Ash's, he thought he had better explode naturally and wholesomely, as might any cowboy.

"—!" he yelled, lustily. "He took my new white horse! And my saddle that I wouldn't lend to the King of England! . . . Never had that happen to me. Doggone!—Boys, was it supposed to be a joke?"

"Joke nothin'." Ash was just mean, like he always is when we

A Cold

Colds are common because people are careless. Prompt use of aspirin will always check a cold. Or relieve your cold at any stage. And genuine aspirin can't hurt you. Take two tablets of Bayer Aspirin at the first indication of a cold, and that's usually the end of it. If every symptom hasn't disappeared in a few hours, repeat. Bayer Aspirin does not depress the heart. Take enough to give complete relief. And if your throat is sore, dissolve three tablets in water and gargle away all soreness. In every package of genuine Bayer Aspirin are proven directions for colds, headaches, sore throat, neuralgia, neuritis. Millions who used to suffer from these things have found winter comfort in aspirin.

Stubborn Coughs Ended by Recipe, Mixed at Home

Here is the famous old recipe which millions of housewives have found to be the most dependable means of breaking up stubborn coughs due to colds. It takes but a moment to prepare, costs little, and saves money, but it gives real relief even for those dreaded coughs that follow severe cold epidemics.

From any drugist, get 2½ ounces of Pinex, pour it into a pint bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup or strained honey. Thus you make a full pint of better remedy than you could buy ready-made for three times the cost. It never spoils and tastes so good that even children like it.

Not only does this simple mixture soothe the inflamed throat membranes with surprising ease, but also it is absorbed into the blood, and acts directly upon the bronchial tubes, thus aiding the whole system in throwing off the cough. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm and eases chest soreness in a way that is really astonishing.

Pinex is a highly concentrated compound of Norway Pine, containing the active agent of cressote, in a refined, palatable form. Nothing known in medicine is more helpful in cases of severe coughs and bronchial irritations. Do not accept a substitute for Pinex. It is guaranteed to give prompt relief or money refunded.

No Automobile License Extension

Notwithstanding the action of the neighboring state of West Virginia, no extension of the time limit set for the use of 1931 automobile plate will be granted, the Ohio motor vehicles division reiterated today.

Motorists who use the old plates will be arrested. Governor George White has ordered enforcement of the law, supporting the stand taken Monday by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown when the mayor of Columbus instructed police not to arrest delinquent motorists.

Inspectors of the state motor vehicles division, who Monday arrested one driver and forced many others to obtain new tags in the state capital, will patrol the streets, if necessary, the secretary of state warned.

East Liverpool is not debating the question, judging from Deputy Automobile License Commissioner J. S. Hilbert's December report which showed the issuance of 2,855 sets of plates and the collection of $34,184.75 in fees for the state.

Handling Mail Is A Business.

The postmaster general has opened the issue of postal finances for discussion again by recommending a three-cent rate on non-local first class mail during the duration of the depression. Later, the rate would be decreased to two and one-half cents, where it would remain permanently. The postal department estimates that the additional cent would produce an increase of revenues at the rate of $100,000,000 annually, on the basis of the present volume of mail. A three-cent rate was in effect from Nov. 3, 1917, to June 30, 1919, and produced $116,000,000, or $70,000,000 annually. There has been a huge increase in the gross revenues of the department since then, however.

Reasons why the postal department is not self-supporting are well known. Millions are lost annually by subsidizing shipping and airplane companies. Tons of government mail are handled without charge. The abused franking privilege accounts for almost a million dollars annually in lost revenues. Free mail for the blind, and second class differentials in favor of education, religious, agricultural and labor organizations all add their bits to the deficit. These things, however, are impositions on the department. Conceivably, they might be removed at a stroke if the decision were to be made to run the department like a business. The bulk of the deficit still would remain. In the fiscal year 1930-31 it was $146,000,000, of which $98,000,000 was net deficit, incurred in the handling of regular postal business. The department forecasts a gross deficit of $200,000,000 in the present fiscal year, unless business improves or higher postal rates are authorized.

Announcement of a postal deficit of such huge size causes no surprise, unfortunately. It is in accord with the sad state of all governmental affairs. Even the most optimistic admirers of the federal way of handling business can but shake their heads sadly and look down their noses in the presence of the greatest utility of all which has to call around at the treasury back door once a year for a hand-out. Everything is in its favor—universal patronage, monopoly, confidence, a laissez-faire attitude—everything, that is, but sound management and principles. The laissez-faire attitude may have something to do with those shortcomings, incidentally.

Handling mail is a business, like selling overcoats or electric current. Those who use the services of the postal department should pay for what they get, and if they think they are being over-charged they should investigate to find out where economies can be made. The department is a public utility with its stock divided among 120,000,000 people. They are willing to pay a fair price for the service they get when they get it, in preference to balancing the books by lump assessments once a year. Among the pieces of unfinished business before congress is straightening out the affairs of the postal department.

Replacements, But No More

They have been figuring some more in the census bureau at Washington and now they have the size of the average American family. For the sake of making it clear, it may be said that there are father, mother, brother and sister. For the sake of making it accurate, it may be said that the average family consists of 4.1 persons, with no regard for their relationship. And for the sake of making it significant it may be said that the average family represents only a sufficient number of children to replace the mother and father, with one-tenth of 1 per cent remaining to absorb the death rate in the younger generation. The stationary population that economists have talked and worried about, variously, is getting closer all the time.

Back in 1890 the typical American family had five members, which meant what it means today, that an average of five persons (4.9 to be exact) lived together as one household. The average is pulled down by persons living alone and pulled up by institutions, boarding houses and in-laws in winter quarters.

By 1900 the average family had dwindled to 4.7 and it has lost two-tenths every decade since then. The shadowy fifth member of the family, who never was more than nine-tenths real, has virtually been decimated out of his theoretical existence. It is important, furthermore, that while he has been disappearing the number of families has been increasing—5,628,470 in the 10 years from 1920 to 1930. In Ohio alone there are 286,809 more families than there were in 1920.

The decrease in the size of the average family represents economic pressure that forced a decision between many children and a lower standard of living, or few children and a higher standard of living, in most cases. In relation to the existing economic situation, smaller families have meant easier adjustment to conditions—less mouths for the wage earner to feed and, in thousands of cases, no mouths at all to feed on his own responsibility because both he and his wife have been able to work. The nominal breadwinner's wage has been supplemented and frequently replaced by his wife's wage. Beyond any doubt the smaller family is less likely to be broken by economic jolting than the larger families of 30 and 40 years ago—families so large that they brought the family average up to 4.9, in spite of the fact that there were fewer institutions to fatten it.

One-Eyed Jacks Wild.

Colonel Leonard P. Ayres hit upon a fortunate figure of speech in his annual forecast delivered to the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. "In 1930," he said, "all of us sat in on the game of business, holding pat hands. We returned in 1931 satisfied to hold on to a small pair and discard the three orphans. In 1932 we'll all say, 'Give me five cards.'"

Colonel Ayres believes the blackest days of the depression were during last October and that 1932 will be a year of transition, from a declining trend to a rising trend. The economic force most directly responsible for the depression, he believes, was the decline in wholesale prices. A supplementary force was the crisis in money and credit that developed in practically every nation.

He looks forward confidently to the future. He believes in his nation and its systems. He prescribes two things to help bring it out of its present unfavorable state: balancing of governmental, corporate and personal budgets by coaxing up incomes and paring down expenses, and subordination of the speculative spirit. Colonel Ayres, in other words, is of the opinion that the United States will not get over its headache until it has ceased to reminisce fondly on the events leading up to the headache. We must turn from efforts to restore the past to preparations for the future, he says.

His is a policy of deflation. To return to the comparison of business with poker, he sees no merit in trying to fill a straight from two cards just because it happened to turn out successfully one other time. Throw them all away and make a fresh start, is the deflationary way of looking at the situation. The inflationary attitude is different, of course. It regards the depression as a passing streak of hard luck that will pass and allow the nation to pick up the jig tune of prosperity where it was interrupted by the black days that started in October, 1929.

Colonel Ayres' view is more sensible. He does not deny that good times will come again, but only that good times will not come again because people who wanted them looked backward instead of forward. It is true that there never have been two booms of exactly the same nature. The late years of prosperity were marked by a vast urge among the masses to get rich quick by speculation. The next years of prosperity will be built on different foundations and will be marked by different activities. When Colonel Ayres says "Look forward!" he is merely repeating the first lesson in the handbook of all human experience.

Hammering It Home.

When carpenters, masons and laborers get busy with hammers, trowels, picks and shovels business men start looking around for the black ink to make entries on the right side of the ledger. In normal years, building construction in the United States amounts to more than the gross operating revenue of all the railroads and twice as much as the value of automobile production—or approximately eight billion dollars.

Building construction led the way out of the depression in 1921, mainly because a housing shortage had accumulated during the war. Remembering what happened then, forecasters are hopeful of a repetition now. There was a slight increase in new residential construction last October, which has given them some excuse to hope. A more substantial reason is the President's conference on home building and home ownership, which convened in Washington Dec. 2. There is a patent intention to hammer home the truth that building construction is the most effective cushion that exists for the shock of depression—a truth already recognized from the federal standpoint, as is made evident in an extensive program of public works.

The wholesale price of building materials is approximately one-fourth lower than before the depression. Those who predict an increase in residential construction believe that prospective builders will take advantage of this favorable factor. Their estimates convince them that the housing surplus which accumulated after 1921 has been about used up, and that the first lightening of depression will be followed by a racket of pounding hammers, sliding trowels and shouted commands for more bricks and two-by-fours. The nation hopes their guess is right; it sounds reasonable enough.

Highlights of Ohio History

THE SPEED MANIA.

By J. H. Galbraith.

For The Associated Press

The off-recurring automobile accident, resulting from reckless driving under the urge of sporting blood, leads to a general denunciation of the so-called speed craze period, as though no other period had developed this trait of human nature when in charge of a new locomotive device. Who that is middle aged or more now fails to remember the denunciation in newspapers of the day, when the bicycles came as a new thing—first the old high wheel and then the safety—aimed at the "scorchers" who rode fast and endangered the lives of pedestrians by his "silent steel."

If any one will read the history of the stage coach days in Ohio he will find the spirit between the drivers of the stages, especially between the drivers of different stage companies, manifested itself so often and on such a reckless way that there were many capsize accidents accompanied by injuries and deaths to the passengers, and it became necessary for stage companies to adopt and enforce strict and severe rules against racing.

Whether the slow going canal boat ever had this difficulty to contend with is not known, but the narrow channel, it would seem, would not lend itself very well to tests of speed. That racing steam boats in the early days of those vessels on Ohio water was often engaged in, sometimes with disastrous results, is, however, a matter of history. The Moselle case is a story still well known in Cincinnati. The Moselle was a new steamboat, built for speed and its crew did not propose its reputation should suffer.

On the afternoon of April 26, 1838, it left Cincinnati for Louisville. Another boat left shortly before the Moselle did and to—was the Moselle's speed, her captain ordered a tremendous head of steam made ready. Hardly had the steamboat gotten under way when the boilers burst, wrecking the vessel amidst ships and causing the loss of 240 lives.

Tomorrow: Jailed for Praying.

New York Day By Day

By O. O. McINTYRE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—This second hand but from authoritative source, is the spookiest of all the weird tales to which I have listened in the big town. It was told by a doctor late to a dinner party and was an excuse to the host for tardiness.

His last patient of the day was a strikingly beautiful lady. After conversational sparring she wanted to know if it were possible for her to be inoculated with a germ that would result in death in a year. She had funds to carry on that long.

It was her preference that the inoculation result in a malady that might be cured in case, for any reason, she changed her mind. She had thought of pernicious anaemia. The doctor, something of a psychiatrist, knew the only hope was to find cause for such mental state.

By skillful questioning he learned suicide was constantly on her mind but she always balked at the last moment. She thought she wanted to die but was not quite sure. Hence the request for the inoculation of a lingering ailment that might be cured, if there was a change of heart.

The reason for the suicide was brought out slowly—so slowly the interview was prolonged four hours. The woman two years ago gave birth to a baby illegitimate. For three months the infant thrived then suddenly went into a decline and passed away.

The undertaker was called, the body embalmed. In the middle of a sleepless night, the mother arose and went into the next room to see the baby in its coffin. As she bent over, she was horrified to see a bubble on the lips and a flutter of eyelids.

According to her story the baby was revived and lived eight hours. It was, of course, the query of listeners: How could one live after being embalmed? The truth is—which was just as shocking—there are several authenticated cases. Sometimes it was faulty embalming but usually it was among morphine addicts.

They were discussing sly humor the other day in contrast to sprightly wise cracking of the present.

ent. Someone recalled the opening sentence in a Mark Twain speech at the Brevoort. Looking out benignly at banquet guests he intoned: "When I look around at the poor old human race, I sometimes think it might have been a good thing if Noah and his family missed the boat."

There was that time Bill Nye and James Whitcomb Riley arrived after a fatiguing journey at the leading hotel in Frankfort, Ky., on a joint lecture engagement. At the desk, they found the clerk, the poke-collared type with the middle-haired-part of the day, engrossed tete-tete with a charming girl. The humorists, still holding their bags, waited patiently for minutes. Finally Nye in his strangely querulous whine said: "Excuse me, young sir, but your face reminds me oddly of Clay." The flattered youth cooed: "You mean our great Henry Clay?" Nye shook his head and drawled indifferently: "No. Just clay."

Out in my crotch of an Ohio creek a prize story concerned the ancient enmity between the old war horse Senator Foraker and William J. Bryan. Bryan was hailed as The Boy orator of the Platte. Foraker liked the title. "The Platte river, I understand, is two inches deep at its source and five miles wide at its mouth," he said.

When Uncle Joe Cannon was making his first political race, he began his opening speech with: "They could go farther and do worse and they probably will do both."

Nor do I think the modern crop of simile makers can touch Eugene Field. He was speaking of a friend's simile: "He stood out like a bone felon on formal, in full dress. Afterward Field, in telling friends, smiled: 'He stood out like a bone felon on the hired girl's thumb.'"

Running along like an antiquated old fool this way suggests the stooped figure in the kidney pill ads. As a matter of fact I have to rush back to New Haven now so I won't miss chapel in the morning. (Copyright, 1932, McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

How To Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND.

SCARLET FEVER is a disease of children rarely seen in adults. It is highly contagious and rapidly spreads from one child to another. All too often serious complications follow this disease.

Children react differently to this disease. A child with a mild form of scarlet fever may pass it on to another child, who then may have the disease in a much more serious form.

I wonder how many of you know that there is a test by which a child's susceptibility to scarlet fever can be determined. This is called the "Dick test." It is based on the same principles as the "Schick test," which determines a child's liability to take diphtheria.

In the Dick test a small amount of a prepared toxin is injected under the skin. It is a simple and painless procedure. If a reddish spot appears on the skin within 24 hours, the child is regarded as susceptible to scarlet fever. If the reaction is positive this spot does not disappear for from two to three days.

the child is not susceptible to scarlet fever, there is only a slight discoloration and this disappears within 24 hours.

Although scarlet fever is extremely contagious some children do not contract it. This is due to a natural immunity which they possess. This immunity, or resistance to the disease, increases with age and that is one of the reasons why the disease is rarely seen in adults.

Few young children possess this immunity. It is important for them to acquire it, if possible.

A Simple Test.

Many authorities believe every child should be tested to find out whether he is susceptible to scarlet fever. If the test is positive, the child should receive a series of injections of scarlet fever toxin so that he may build up his resistance to the disease. These injections are given at weekly intervals. Their success is checked by another Dick test, to determine whether or not the desired immunity has been developed.

Encouraged by the amazing success of the efforts to control diphtheria, it is hoped that scarlet fever will be eradicated eventually. This can only be hoped for when there is complete cooperation between parents and health officers.

cess of the efforts to control diphtheria, it is hoped that scarlet fever will be eradicated eventually. This can only be hoped for when there is complete cooperation between parents and health officers.

Since the test is so simple, every mother should think seriously about the advantage of this added protection for her child. Anyhow, talk with your doctor about it.

UNNECESSARY EMOTION

When you attend any sort of a contest which causes your nervous system to be wrought up to a point where you are emotionally at most beyond control you are subjecting yourself to an unwise degree of excitement.

It is natural, of course to experience a certain degree of excitement, in other words, to get a "kick" out of events in which you are interested.

But there is a limit to which you should allow yourself to be aroused.

If, for instance, you tremble with emotion, if you find that you can hardly retain your seat, that blood is rushing to your head and your breathing is so fast that there is an extra demand made upon your heart, then you are being too much affected.

It is probably true that it is well for everybody to experience something to arouse quicker heart action at times.

But it is easy for nervous people to overdo the matter. Some persons are nervous wrecks after attending some contest which plays upon their nerves to any great degree.

It is only necessary to watch the crowd at contests and realize how many of them, should not be there at all.

Women are more easily affected and least able to stand it. Copyright, 1932, International Features Service, Inc.

The Reviewing Stand

By TOM T. JONES

NOT generally known is the fact that the late Colonel John N. Taylor, long the head of the Knowles, Taylor & Knowles Pottery company here and an outstanding figure in the manufacturing and political world of this section of the Ohio valley, kept a series of scrap books in which were preserved many of the pertinent papers and data that revealed some of the ware-making departures of an earlier day.

Preserved with other material that formed his estate they are exceedingly interesting in that they give out matter that shows how the pottery industry during his regime with those of his contemporaries developed the earthenware industry to a point in which his own and the Homer Laughlin plant became recipients of highest honors in the Columbian exposition at Chicago in 1893.

Then throughout the preserved material which he thought it advisable to keep for his own and others' edification in the future runs a line of remarkable loyalty to William McKinley, his close personal friend, who for years was the congressman from this district and later the governor of Ohio and the nation's President. Second only to these may be noted the deduction that his own Republican principles were equally as ardent in their relationships with officialdom and activities in the municipality in which he lived and where he was so outstanding a business figure.

To one glancing carelessly over the pages of some of these scrap books there comes the distinct impression of the part played in his day of good penmanship. Type-writers in his earlier business career were not well developed and not generally used. Therefore correspondence and may of the recommendations that were then made took the form of pen writing. The legibility and beauty of the script thus adduced with the marked characteristics of the writers themselves which their signatures thus revealed, can not fail but impress.

Colonel Taylor was a decidedly fine penman himself judged by some of the notes added to some of the clippings that have been preserved which doubtless he made. Particularly in places therein does the signature of Colonel Will A. Rhodes, K. T. & K. salesman, stand out. His was a bold, emphatic hand.

SOME of the pamphlet price lists of the plant have in this manner been preserved. Then there are numerous entire pages of advertisements that were used in the Crockery Journal and other clay periodicals of the day. These contain notices of some of the new shapes or designs which from time to time were arranged and turned out by the pottery management.

Then he was thoughtful enough to keep for future generations some of the small greeting material that had been utilized for the establishment of good will between the plant and those with whom it transacted business. One of these was a "Have a smoke" card that was sent out generously during the Christmas season of 1889 with the compliments of the K. T. & K. officials.

Just above this printed suggestion upon the card had been placed a neat paper box in which was enclosed a single good cigar and a gutta-percha parlor pocket match upon which was inscribed the words: "K. T. & K., East Liverpool, Ohio." Thus the recipients could immediately enjoy a smoke at once upon receipt of the card. It can readily be apprehended what a pleasant reaction to the pottery gift made that such an ingenious gift made. Then one of the full page magazine advertisements in 1890 wished "A Happy New Year" to all perusing the periodical.

Just alongside some of these were papers has been preserved in one of the scrap books a series of political cards announcing the candidacy of some of the candidates for office in 1896. There was one that revealed that John W. Wymann was then a candidate for mayor.

Another indicated J. W. Finley as standing for street commissioner and Sherman T. Herbert for the city treasurer. There was also one for A. V. Gilbert. The latter and Mr. Herbert's card had large union labels upon them. Still another card was that of John Peaker of East Liverpool who, at the primaries of May 6, 1892 which led to the later convention, was a candidate for congress.

There was also saved by him a pottery card which at intervals doubtless was sent out to the trade of 1889. It noted that the K. T. & K. plant was then making a long list of articles that extended from shell trays to Washington jugs.

THEN there were newspaper clippings that chronicled the fact that the plant had experienced a loss of 250,000 during the fire that visited it on Nov. 18, 1889. Then it was revealed that the rebuilt section was reopened for active work on August 18 following. But eight months had elapsed and the pottery, then greatly enlarged in this manner, entered upon a successful and prosperous interim.

Then there were clippings kept which showed that the plant had been founded in 1859 by Isaac A. Knowles and Isaac A. Harvey and that the former had later purchased the interests of the latter. In the beginning only yellow ware had been manufactured. Then was added Rockingham, a better ware which was made by the use of colored glaze. Though he had been engaged at the plant shortly before the beginning in 1868, Colonel Taylor, it was indicated in some of the papers preserved, became allied with the firm in 1870 with Homer S. Knowles. The latter took charge of the sales department. Then the entire plant had but two kilns.

One of Colonel Taylors preserved clippings declared the pottery wheel to be one of the oldest me-

Its invention was due to the desire to remedy the irregularities of hand work," the writer of it maintained. "As such it is a valuable achievement. It brought symmetry into the manufacturing of ware."

In 1890 the K. T. & K plant was emphasizing translucent hotel china and vitreous ware. It was suggested that those ordering should state whether hotel china or white granite was required by them. Then mention was being made of its Lotus ware that was a high grade of art china.

Some of the letter heads of the stationary of the plant were also thus preserved by Colonel Taylor: One of these, used in 1889, had miniature pictures of the "China Works" the White "Granite Works" and the "Decorating Works" which formed the chief sections of the manufactory. At the top of the page and above these pictures ran the names of Isaac W. Knowles, John N. Taylor, Homer S. Knowles and Joseph G. Lee. The latter with Willis A. Knowles had become associated with the firm in 1888.

THERE was preserved in this manner also an envelope that was used in the Mexican end of the plant's trade in 1891. At that time the company was calling special attention to the china spittoons which it was turning out. The Mexican mercantile circular which was sent abroad then carried among other things the following: "La Fabrica de Loza, made grande del universo."

There was a card used that year also which stated upon it: "Our true Hotel China is branded K. T. & K., and while we have no patent on the name we guarantee the goods." Then upon some of the paper used in communications with the 1891 trade the first and last letters of the name of the pottery company were printed in red which made a very inviting combination appearance.

At that time the company was making toilet sets which were named for cities and states in this country. That known as "Minneapolis" was declared to be a great favorite. "The 'St. Paul' then had a wonderful sale. The 'Dakota' also pleased and the 'Colorado' was popular and gave good service. But it was maintained that the "Teloma" led all. Doubtless some of the older potters of the locality will remember all of these sets as they then were being turned out.

Then there was preserved a clipping to bulwark his belief in the merits of advertising. It was from the pen of P. T. Barnum who knew something about the results of printing ink in building and maintaining a great business. Colonel Taylor, reading Mr. Barnum's observation in some paper doubtless thought his statement should be kept for additional and frequent reference. "When I see a man doing business without advertising it reminds me of a fellow who winks at his girl in the dark. No one but himself knew what he was doing," was the observation of the great showman.

During the holiday trade of 1891 a 24-piece Tea set, either of china or granite, plain or decorated was emphasized in the plant production. They were packed in wooden boxes with sliding covers. Then the numerous circulars and oblong stickers with the plant's name upon them with other additional facts that in the early days of the plant were used in attracting trade. These were among the other things preserved in the scrap book by Colonel Taylor.

THERE was preserved also one of the tickets that had been used in the outing which the management of the K. T. & K. plant gave to the employees of the concern on Thursday, July 7, 1898. There was that day, it was noted, an attendance of some 2,000 persons. Racing, dancing and other outdoor activities were indulged in.

One of the full page advertisements in some of the pottery journals of that day carried the pictures of the plants' three salesmen at the time, George L. Smith, Colonel William A. Rhodes and Colonel William C. Watson. Arranged at intervals between the printed matter appearing in it the photographs made an impressive appearance.

When Homer S. Knowles, then vice president of the pottery firm, passed away while living in New York city on Nov. 7, 1892, Colonel Taylor was one of those who rushed to the metropolitan center to assist in the returning of the remains to East Liverpool for burial. The internment occurred in River-view cemetery three days later.

Newspaper accounts of the end and the life of Mr. Knowles were preserved by Colonel Taylor as were some of the black bordered mourning cards that had been printed to make the announcement of his demise.

About this time the plant was turning out ware sets known as the "Montana" and "Virginia" also. There was preserved by Colonel Taylor also the black bordered card that had been sent out announcing the passing of John R. Wyllie on March 20, 1893. It contained a three stanza poem by J. Hodson which was as follows: "In peace he lived, in hope he died, unto God's will resigned; His absence leaves a cheerless void in loving thoughts behind." Then there was kept all of these subsequent years a red ribbon, venerated of which had been worn by many men all over the state of Ohio when the campaign began to have Mark Hanna named as the successor in the United States Senate of John Sherman who then had been appointed secretary of state by William McKinley. The ribbon carried a fine likeness of the former Lisbon man at the time. Under it were the words, "The Party's Choice."

MITZI GREEN SAYS SHE'LL SPEND HER LIFE AS ACTRESS

Eclipse Of "Awkward Age" Does Not Alarm Child Star.

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—When the bright young light that is Mitzi Green goes, two or three years hence, behind the clouds of the "awkward age," the eclipse will be only temporary.

Mitzi is going to be an actress all her life—"if I have anything to say about it," she said positively. A mother and father Green (he is Joe Keeno, a vaudeville comedian) approved.

The family group received us in an apartment still cluttered and bright with the spoils of Christmas, tree and all, and Mitzi, between pauses to exhibit cards and gifts, vouchsafed some discussion of her career, aided and abetted by Mother Green, who surprisingly let Mitzi answer all the questions we directed at her.

MITZI TALKS FOR HERSELF

Most movie mothers insist on talking for their children, but Mitzi is quite capable of speaking for herself.

"I hope I can be as good an actress as Miriam Hopkins," said Mitzi, "and later on as good as Marie Dressler. Look, here's a beautiful one from Wesley Ruggles and Arline Judge."

Mitzi has grown much in the three years since first she dawned on the screen, a precocious, bright, lovable youngster of 8 who insisted she was not a "child star," but a "character actress." At 11, she still insists on the distinction.

When she completes her present picture, "Girl Crazy," Mitzi goes on a vaudeville tour, then she is to fulfill a contract for radio broadcasting, after which she returns to Hollywood.

She—or rather her parents—would not renew her affiliation with Paramount because the studio, in the present retrenchment wave, wanted to forego the substantial increase the contract had promised. "Girl Crazy" is for Radio, and Mitzi's a free lance at double her former salary.

AND COLLEGE, TOO

"College?" we asked.

"Sure," said Mitzi.

"Yes," elaborated Mother Green, "I'd like to take her to England for college. I hope we can —"

"Maybe they wouldn't let me into a school over there," said Mitzi. "My teacher says they spell lots of words differently in England. H-o-n-o-u-r for honor, g-l-a-m-o-u-r for glamor, f-a-v-o-u-r-i-t-e for favorite. What would I do?"

Mitzi doesn't like to be the rascally tomboy on the screen, all the time. She liked the sweetness of Becky Thatcher in "Tom Sawyer." She actually cried all night after the preview of "Skippy"—because it made her a little meanie.

She wants a really good story that will give her a "sympathetic chance."

Current Playbills

CERAMIC

Norma Shearer and Robert Montgomery join in a novel duet in "Private Lives," in which they are co-starred by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and which is current at the Ceramic theater.

In this scene Miss Shearer sings for the first time in pictures, using the song number written by Noel Coward for the original stage production of the hilarious farce. It is titled "Some Day I'll Find You," and as the scene opens on a hotel balcony, Montgomery is whistling the song. As he whistles, Miss Shearer emerges on an opposite balcony and starts to sing, accompanied by Montgomery's whistling accompaniment.

Although Miss Shearer is an accomplished pianist and known to her friends as the possessor of a lovely soprano voice, the song in the new picture is the first time she has sung for the public.

Two microphones were employed by Director Sidney Franklin to record the unusual duet. One took care of the high-frequency vibrations of the whistling and the other was tuned in on Miss Shearer's voice.

Included in the cast of this hilarious farce, the first co-starring vehicle for the popular favorites, are Reginald Denny, Una Merkel, Jean Hersholt and George Davis.

STATE

Ever since she demonstrated her persuasive appeal of eyes and voice as she sang "I'm A Dreamer," in "Sunny Side Up," Janet Gaynor has been besieged by her admirers the world over to sing again on the screen.

As a result of this public appeal, Janet's latest screen offering, "Delicious," in which she is co-starred with Charles Farrell, features George Gershwin music. Although Janet sings but one song, its popular appeal is attested to by the pleased audiences at the State theater where the picture is showing. "Somebody From Somewhere," as sung so winsomely by Janet, was easily the hit number of the picture.

"Delicious" is an infectious comedy romance by Guy Bolton reuniting the stars and El Brendel, the comedian of "Sunny Side Up," in what must be considered as far more entertaining and amusing picture in every way. David Butler, the man who produced both "Sunny Side Up" and "High Society Blues," pictures which introduced Miss Gaynor and Farrell as

COAL LEADS IN RIVER FREIGHT

105,800 Tons Shipped By Water Last Month.

Coal led shipments of commodities on the Ohio river in the Pittsburgh district during December, 1931, when a total of 105,800 tons was carried, the monthly report compiled at Dam No. 8 today by W. G. Parker, clerk, indicated.

Total shipments on the river during the 31-day period was 198,140 tons, approximately 10,000 tons decrease over November. Seven hundred and eighty-five crafts and nine passengers, all enroute south, were locked through at the dam. The itemized tonnage for commodities follows:

NEWELL UNIT HEARS PASTOR

Rev. Eberhart Speaks At Community Meet.
More emphasis on "men" and less on "methods" is needed to end the depression and rid the world of its present economic difficulties, Rev. A. D. Eberhart, pastor of the First Methodist Episcopal church of Newell, said in an address at the January meeting of the Newell community association Monday night, in the offices of the North American Manufacturing company at Fifth and Washington streets.
Rev. Eberhart based his talk on the following statement by George Bernard Shaw, British author, "I see no way out of the world's present trouble but the way Jesus would have found had He undertaken the work of a modern practical statesman."
"We need men who are capable of leading," Rev. Eberhart said. "Methods are necessary but they are not most important. Millions of 'americans today are calling upon President Hoover to work out some miraculous method by which the depression may be ended. He cannot do much by himself. The methods can be supplied easily if he can find the men to put them into operation."
"This so-called depression is the result of selfishness on the part of a great percentage of human beings. This selfishness and greed has been inflamed by the until it has resulted in the present conditions. This selfishness must be met and conquered before better times return."
Rev. Eberhart and Dr. E. W. Guilford, who gave a brief talk on a medical subject, were introduced by Joseph Dickey, chairman of the program committee. The program also included musical entertainment by the Frank Armstrong trio.
Committee reports were given and plans for the coming year outlined during the business session. Chalmer Smith, president, was in charge.

ALLEN COUNTY APPEALS BOND ISSUE DISPUTE

Wellsville Watches Case In Supreme Court.

The supreme court of the United States has been asked to pass on the Allen county sewer bond case involving the validity of several million dollars worth of bonds in the state and affecting the $2,500 issue for installation of a new sanitary sewer in Boyce avenue, Wellsville.
The board of commissioners, of Allen county, in a 34-page statement filed with the court, presented grounds which they said were sufficient to have the supreme court review the case and set aside the ruling of the Ohio supreme court which held that the commissioners were required to raise tax money sufficient to pay the principal and interest of the bonds issued for sewer improvements.
The brief challenged the state court's ruling sustaining the validity of the district sewer and water supply acts and in issuing an order requested by J. Charles Bowman. They contended the acts contravene and are repugnant to the 14th amendment to the Federal Constitution because they require a levy and collection of a public tax for cost of an improvement not public to the area taxed and of no general public concern to taxpayers against whom taxes are collected.
The brief also alleges that the acts provide that the cost of the improvement shall be charged to general taxpayers without notice or knowledge of taxpayers or provision for hearing on determination of rights and because acts require them to act in judicial capacity in determining whether the improvements shall be made. The commissioners pointed out that the acts provided for payment to them of the cost of improvements as compensation if they favored it, but allowed them no compensation or reward if they decided against the improvement.

Gov. White Declares Ohio Auto License Law Must Be Enforced

Executive Acts As Columbus Mayor Orders Police Not To Arrest Delinquent Motorists.
By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 5.—Governor George White had declared today that the motor vehicle law and other state laws must be enforced. He made the statement after a conference with Col. Chalmers R. Wilson, chief of the bureau of motor vehicles, and Judge J. G. Belknap, assistant secretary of state, in which they explained the Columbus situation resulting when Mayor Henry Worley ordered police not to arrest delinquent motorists for using 1931 automobile tags.
Terminating the controversy a "tempest in a teapot," the governor declared that "we cannot allow every mayor to interpret the law as he wishes."
Meanwhile motor vehicle inspectors and deputy sheriffs continued their drive to enforce the law.
One man was arrested and released under bond and 50 others were requested to purchase tags.

HUNTER KILLS GIRL ON FARM

Shot Fired Mile Away in Woods At Bryan.
By The Associated Press.
BRYAN, O., Jan. 5.—The identity of a hunter believed to have fired the shot that accidentally killed Kathleen Carver, 12-year-old farm girl, was known to authorities today.
The hunter, with a companion, was shooting chicken hawks in a woods a mile and a quarter away from where Kathleen stood as a bullet struck her Sunday. Defiance county authorities said. Prosecutor Edwin S. Diehl said a charge of shooting on Sunday might be filed against the man, and the owner of the death gun, charged with manslaughter. Both, however, were allowed to return home after being questioned last night.
Kathleen, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Otis Carver, well-to-do farmers living near here, was shot as she was standing in the rear of the home of neighbors she had gone to visit.

NEW MIDLAND LAWMAKERS TO BE INSTALLED

Council Will Reorganize Wednesday Night.

The first 1932 meeting of the Midland council at 7:30 p. m. Wednesday will be a busy session. Three lawmakers—Daniel D. Daugherty, W. I. McInerney and Louis Megdal—who were re-elected last November for four-year terms, will be sworn in, following which the body council will organize. Robert Lloyd of Ohio avenue is now the president. P. A. Fensler, P. P. Rodgers, P. D. Lockwood and Lloyd are the holdover members.
Twelve positions, including the borough secretary, borough solicitor, street commissioner, borough engineer and health officer, and chief of police, lieutenant, sergeant and three patrolmen and fire chief will be filled by appointments by the councilmen. An ordinance fixing the salaries of these employees must be passed.
The ordinance setting the tax levy for the borough for 1932 and the appropriations ordinance fixing the budget for the year must also be passed at this session. Indications were today, after two meetings of the councilmen to arrange the 1932 budget, that by slicing many of the incidental expenditures in the various departments the tax millage for the year may be reduced from 15 to 14 mills.
The debt service this year, which cares for the payment of retiring bonds and interest, amounts to $51,382, an increase of approximately $8,000 over the 1931 debt service. The retirement of bonds will drop to about $45,000 again in 1933. In order to reduce the tax levy, the funds must be slashed still lower, it was said. No salaries will be cut to reduce the 1932 overhead, only as a last measure to economize, Lloyd said today.
The office holders, who will probably be re-appointed for the most part, are: Mrs. C. K. O'Hara, borough secretary; R. E. Steebner, street commissioner and city engineer; Benton Neely, health officer; former Judge Richard S. Holt of Beaver, solicitor; Chief of Police William M. Fox, Lieutenant Harry Kleezan; Sergeant H. W. Grosh, Patrolmen Edward Steff, H. P. Norris and J. Q. Aaron; and Fire Chief Edward J. Barrett.

Practically the entire village of St. Mary's England, is now out of work. Since the reign of George III they have made paper for the Bank of England. Now the bank makes its own.

REV. LAWTHER IN PULPIT AT UNION SERVICE

Prayer Week Services Will Open Here Monday.

"To be certain of having one's prayer answered the petitioner must be an abider in God and His words must abide in the person making the supplication," averred Rev. J. H. Lawther, pastor of the First Presbyterian church at the initial union service of the week of prayer at the First Methodist Episcopal church on West Fifth street Monday night.

Pastors of co-operating downtown churches were in attendance. Rev. Paul E. Secrest of the First Methodist Episcopal church, presided. The invocation was given by Rev. A. H. O'Brien, pastor of the First Baptist church. Rev. W. H. Baker of the First Church of Christ read the scripture lesson. The concluding prayer was made by Rev. B. H. Shaddock of the Orchard Grove Methodist Episcopal church. Rev. Lawther pronounced the benediction.

The second of the series of meetings will be held at the First Baptist church tonight at 7:30. Rev. W. H. Baker of the First Church of Christ will preach. His subject will be: "The Greatest Need of the World."

Dr. Lawther spoke upon the theme: "How to Pray Prayers That Will Be Answered."

He maintained that the presence of sin in the human heart, the clinging to that which makes one out of harmony with God prevented answer to many prayers that are made.

"Jesus Christ gave the suggestion for the certain answering of prayers to God when he asserted that one praying must abide in God and His words abide in the one praying," he said. "If such a condition exists then whatsoever is asked shall be done to or for the petitioner."

"It is our, not God's, fault, that so many prayers are not answered. We too often do not abide in Him. God's words do not abide in us. One of the tragedies of the day lies in the fact that so many do not know God's words. Some never seek to know them."

"The average church member attends church perhaps once for a brief hour on Sunday. Young people in many instances are not present at young people's meetings. The remainder of God's day is too often utilized for purposes other than spiritual development."

"Men and women, during the week, declare they are too busy for spiritual activities. And this stand is taken despite the fact that God commanded that they seek the kingdom of heaven before all other things. Those giving first place to card and drinking parties are not in a position to meet the requirements for answered prayer. The Holy Spirit will not enter such persons even though they be allied with a church."

MAX CAREY RECALLS ROOKIES FOR 1932

Hartford Northwestern Forced Into Overtime To Win Big Ten Opener

Furnishes Talent

Four Young Pitchers Look Best of Lot For Chase.

By GAYLE TALBOT, Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—You'll scarcely recognize the Brooklyn Dodgers, when the 1932 season rolls around.

Max Carey is authority for the statement, but, although the club owners have provided Carey with 12 "new" players, the inn keeper at Clearwater will require few introductions when the squad reaches training camp. Of the 11 men recalled from Hartford, Dodge farm, all but one were with the parent team at one time or another in 1932. The only bonafide new Dodger is Arthur Jones, pitcher purchased from Kershaw, S. C.

The outstanding prospects among the Hartford contingent are four young pitchers, Phil Gillivan, Van Mungo, John Krider and Earl Mattingly, who fairly burned down the Eastern league last season. Frank O'Doul, Floyd (Babe) Herman and Johnny Frederick are to return to the outfield, with Ray Bressler filling in now and then.

Del Bissonette, who recently underwent an operation on his throwing arm, faces no real competition at first and Walter Gilbert will return to his post at third.

Captain Glenn Wright, whose ankles failed him last season, has announced he'll be in shape again and expects to reclaim his job at shortstop. Presco Thompson, ailing much of last season, may lose out to young Mickey Finn at second.

Though his fast one isn't what it used to be, Dazzy Vance is expected to head the pitching staff with Watson Clark, Ralph Phelps, Adolphe Laque, Lefty Helms, Clyde Day, Austin Moore, Hollis Thurston, Joe Shaute and John Quinn at Carey's disposal.

At Lopez and Ernest Lombard will be back to divide the catching with Val Picinich in reserve.

CHRISTNER WINS WITH BAD HAND

By The Associated Press. OMAHA, Neb., Jan. 5.—K. O. Christner, Akron heavyweight, broke his right hand in a bout last night with Bearcat Wright, Omaha Negro, but ability to land his left consistently gave him the decision.

Christner's injury came in the fourth round when he landed a hard swing on the top of Wright's head.

Wright, at 215 pounds, had a five-pound advantage.

In honor of the date, he will celebrate in his program Wednesday night, January 13, via WABC-CBS. Among his songs will be "Wabash Moon," the signature of his daily 15 minutes before he started in his present series.

FORM THAT MADE HIM CHAMPION

JOE FALCARIO'S STANCE THE DELIVERY A PERFECT STRIKE

If ever anybody sits down to write a book immortalizing the miracle men of sports, away up near the top list will be the name of Joe Falcario, national bowling champion since 1929. Only five feet three in height and weighing but 124 pounds, Falcario has amazed all who ever watched him play with the powers of endurance he displays. But slinging 16-pound balls around has become second nature to him. He has done scarcely anything else since he started setting up pins in a New York alley 25 years ago. Pictures above show Falcario in action. Notice the easy "quiet-at-home" stance. He also introduces a golf rule into the game; for he keeps his eye on the ball until it has run its course. Picture at right shows his favorite spot for securing a strike. Any time the ball comes between the one and three pins a strike is certain. Falcario is a past master in locating this "pocket."

1 Million Goal Of Champion

Maxie Hopes to Make That Much in 3 Battles.

By HERBERT W. BARKER, Associated Press Sports Writer. NEW YORK, Jan. 5.—Max Schmeling is back again to undertake a title program he hopes will bring him $1,000,000 in the next nine months.

It was late in 1928, when Schmeling, then an unknown German, arrived in New York. Since then he has won the world's heavyweight championship and successfully defended it against Young Stribling.

He already has made a fortune. Der Maxie has three title defenses in mind, against Mickey Walker, Jack Dempsey and Jack Sharkey, but the chances are he will find the game will not be able to support more than two. His first defense will be against Walker at Miami, Fla., late in February. Expecting no especial trouble with Walker, Schmeling is looking ahead toward a possible meeting with Dempsey in June, if Dempsey is ready to attempt a comeback.

Then Schmeling, in the event of a victory over the old Manassa mauler, would be ready to give Sharkey a "shot" at the title.

But if Dempsey would rather wait until September Schmeling will wait for him, and Sharkey will have to wait another year for a chance at the title he handed Max by hitting him low in the Yankee stadium in June, 1930.

Badgers Succumb 31 to 30

Ohio State Surprises With 29-28 Victory Over Illinois.

By WILLIAM WEEKES, Associated Press Sports Writer. CHICAGO, Jan. 5.—Northwestern today had a victory racked up for its first game in defense of the Big Ten basketball championship, but the Wildcats hope the rest of the schedule is not as tough as Wisconsin was last night.

Only after battling overtime could Northwestern gain a 31 to 30 decision over the Badgers. In the meantime, Purdue gave another big demonstration of power in mauling Indiana 49 to 30, and Ohio State accomplished a mild upset in defeating Illinois, 29 to 28.

Northwestern's victory was scored on a field goal by Saul Farber. The Wildcats were outscored from the floor, but made good on 11 out of 12 free throw attempts to more than balance things.

Purdue turned on all its power at the start against Indiana and led by 28 to 9 at the half.

Illinois was beaten largely through long shots by Hobber and Matteson, Ohio guards, who collected eight points between them late in the game. Illinois led, 11 to 3, at the half, and score was tied four times in the last period.

Iowa, playing a non-conference foe, defeating Drake, 24 to 18. Minnesota preserved its spotless record with a 50 to 24 rout of North Dakota, but Chicago lost to Marquette, 36 to 21.

The firing will become general Saturday. Indiana will invade Northwestern, Purdue will seek its second straight victory at Illinois. Chicago will be host to Minnesota. Michigan will open its schedule at Wisconsin, and Iowa will meet Ohio State at Columbus.

MAKES FORTUNE ON FROGS, FISH

HANDLEY, Tex., Jan. 5.—T. H. Forte, formerly a building contractor, is making a fortune raising bullfrogs and goldfish here.

He has been in business for seven years and except for one mishap, the escape of 800 bullfrogs, has profited and expanded steadily. A two-year old bullfrog weighs five to seven pounds and sells for a dollar.

The plant covers more than two acres and includes eleven different concrete lined ponds. He doesn't know how many frogs there are and estimates the number of goldfish in the various pools at 130,000.

Forte raises snails as a sideline and his stock numbers five varieties.

Take Heart!

Looking back over the past century and a half, this country has enjoyed unparalleled growth and prosperity, interrupted only by brief periods of depression whenever reckless speculation displaced constructive work.

And after each and every slump, we have gone forward to new peaks of wealth, income and achievement. Let's view the future in the light of our experiences in the past.

THE WORLD'S FINEST GAS RANGE

Fewer Cooking Steps... Less Kitchen Hours
Range, cupboard, kitchen table, all-in-one

One match lights the pilot when the range is installed—you will never need another match as long as you use this range. The gas is ignited automatically when it is turned on—no button to push—just turn the handle and the gas is lit—new—different and convenient.

Everything you need, all the space you require, is right before you—Prepare your food on the stainless table top—slide it over to the cooking top or oven, get it ready for the table without taking a step. It's just a matter of inches from sizzling skillet or roaster to the meat platter, from saucepan to serving dish.

Two roomy—easy-sliding, utility drawers—one completely equipped—add to the time and labor-saving qualities of this wonderful range.

Every range is monogrammed with the owner's initials. When installed, the range is adjusted to just the height you want it to be. This range, cupboard and kitchen table—all-in-one—is built expressly to suit your needs.

As different in operation as it is in appearance. No need to open the door to light the oven. One movement of a lever turns on and lights the oven gas, sets the heat control. The clock controls the oven timing. The Rigidraw smokeless broiler pan can be raised or lowered by turning the handle. The range legs are adjustable, so that you may have just the cooking-top height you want. The oven is heavily insulated, to keep the oven hot, the cook cool.

Estate GAS RANGES

The 1932 Estate will do everything that any range will do—and do it better—and easier and quicker than any other range regardless of the kind of fuel used. No other range is the equal of the nationally famous Estate.

ONE TURN OF THE DIAL!

... that's all—for perfect baking

You don't need to light a match—the gas comes on and is lit when you turn the handle. You don't even have to open the oven or broiler door—just one turn of the dial lights the oven and sets the heat control. The heavily insulated Fresh Air—"Double Broiler" oven takes the ups and downs out of baking, keeps all the heat where it belongs—inside the oven. The Estate Fresh Air Oven is a revelation in baking. The flame heats the fresh air coming into the specially designed oven and this air distributes the heat evenly over every inch of the bottom and side-walls of the oven—Extra heavy insulation completely surrounds the oven and broiler—assuring a cool kitchen in summer and a saving of gas.

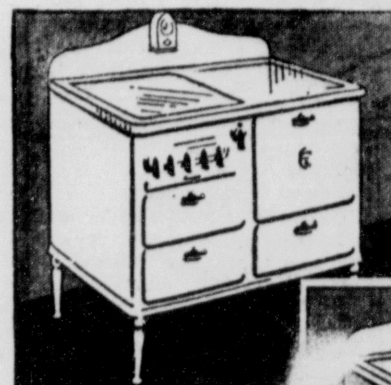

The oven time control, an attractive clock, a new but thoroughly tested and dependable device, is the final step in making the gas range oven completely automatic in operation.

Now, you may leave your home just after luncheon, and be sure that the dinner which you have placed in the oven will start to cook, say at three o'clock, and be done to a turn, all ready to serve, at six.

The Time-Estate clock not only times all baking and roasting operations, automatically, but is also a thoroughly dependable kitchen clock. It is finished in lacquer, in colors to match the finish of the range.

Turn on the gas... and presto the burner lights...

This positive automatic lighting action is the same whether you turn on any one of the four top burners, the broiler or the baker.

It was part of the punishment they are to receive from Judge Frank M. Padden.
"Perhaps this will bring home to these men the seriousness of their offenses in endangering the lives of other youngsters," the judge said.

The caucus also recommended selection of former Congressman John J. Whitacre of Waynesburg as a White delegate-at-large.

VOTERS TO FILL CONGRESS SEAT
New Hampshire Republicans Seek To Reduce Democratic Control Of House Today.
By The Associated Press.
MANCHESTER, N. H., Jan. 5. — The increase or decrease by one of the slim margin of Democratic control in the congress rested today with the voters of New Hampshire's first congressional district.
John H. Bartlett, a former governor and the choice of first district Republicans in a special election to fill the vacancy left by the death of Fletcher Hale, opposed William N. Rogers, Democratic nominee and last member of his party to hold a congressional seat from New Hampshire.
The Bartlett forces based their hopes on the party loyalty of the voters of the nominally Republican district while Rogers' followers relied on a series of Democratic gains in recent municipal elections.
Bartlett is willing to vote for a referendum on prohibition while Rogers favors repeal of the 18th amendment.

CITY TIGHTENS PURSE STRINGS
Chicago City Employees Put on Six-hour Day Schedule to Clear Financial Mire.
By The Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Jan. 5. — Chicago today began to tighten up on its purse strings.
The city council was responsible for the action, adopting a recommendation of Mayor Anton J. Cermak, for a six hour day for all municipal employees, except policemen and firemen, during January and February, to help the city out of the financial mire.
Mayor Cermak's monthly check is cut from $1,500 to $1,140.
The plan amounts to a wage cut of 20 per cent for employees paid by the month and 27 per cent for those paid by the day.
Meanwhile 12,000 night school students found themselves unable to attend classes because the schools were closed for lack of money, and there was a possibility that the city's 18,000 school teachers might have to take a cut in pay.

GANDHI SEEKS CHRISTIAN AID
Mahatma in India Calls Fight Against British Government "Struggle for Peace."
By The Associated Press.
BOMBAY, Jan. 5. — Mahatma Gandhi sought today to enlist the Christians of India in his fight against the British government, calling it a Christian "struggle for peace."
In the meantime nationalists pressed a strict boycott on British and foreign goods and the government retaliated with more group arrests.
With one blow 45 organizations affiliated with the nationalist congress in Calcutta and its suburbs were declared unlawful by the government.
In his appeal Gandhi said: "I have full trust that in the present struggle you who tender your loyalty to one whom you call the Prince of Peace will not be behind any other community in a struggle which is essentially based on peace."
The nationalists' cause received some reinforcement by an offer of support from a part of the powerful All-India Muslim congress at New Delhi.
Heretofore the government has had the support of a vast majority of the Moslems. The disaffected members may now go over to Gandhi, they said.
